1. Concentration of Russian Forces, including infantry, medium and light artillery, and air force units, is proceeding steadily on the Austro-Hungarian frontier. There are relatively few armored troops.
2. The following have been ordered to stand by:
  - (1) Two armored regiments and one anti-tank artillery regiment stationed in the woods to the west and southwest of Bruck a/d Leitha;
  - (2) Three battalions of motorized infantry and two battalions of the 11th Armored Division in Wiener-Neustadt;
  - (3) Four regiments of the 13th Motorized Division in the Freistadt area;
  - (4) Six battalions of Motorized Infantry of the 17th Division and Hq of the 23d Antiaircraft Artillery Division in the Stockerau area;
  - (5) The 105th Artillery Regiment in the Rohrbach area;
  - (6) an unidentified Katyushka unit, some 7,000 strong, in the Breitenhorst (sic) area;
  - (7) Hq of the 3d Independent Krakov Regiment for special employment in the area of the village of Giessbühl, 5 km west of Mödling.
4. These units have been ordered to follow Plan G in case of emergency. They will leave one-tenth of their strength at their present stations and hold the remaining nine-tenths ready for immediate action. Nos. 1, 6, and 7 form a special unit
